BY F. A. DURIVAGE, Give you my vote! No! not to save This shattered body from the grave. Your perjured party I disclaim— Trenson in nature. Whig in name. To those who would my reason know— 'Tis this—I've fought in Mexico.

While thro' our ranks swept grape and shell, While thro' our ranks swept grape and:
And yielded n me-though hundreds fellwhile each was sank in the advance.
Was spitted by a brigand's lance,
While we our country's colors bore
Triumphant through the battle's rear,
You gave the murderous forman aid,
You whetted each assessin's blade;
Yes, to the cow ards courage gave,
Heaped curses on your country's brave:
And now you change at once your note,
And ask a soldier for his vote!

And ask a soldier for his voice.

Think you your voices could not reach To Verz. Cruz's conquered beach, Or that your curses died awny Before the walls of Monterey!
Not so! in every conquered town The language quoted was your own; In every pri. ted Azice sheet, Your speeches we were sure to meet, I vote your frau iful ticket! No!
For I have fought in Mexic.

You say that Taylor lends you on;
My vote for Taylor must be thrown;
He wears the sollie 's harrel leaf,
He is t'e soldier's honore chief,
'Tis true. His honors are his own—
He won them by his sword alone. He won them by his sword alone.
But where the honor to command
Of traitor Whigs a ravenous band,
Who Leaped dishoner on the cause
In which he won the world's applause!
To bring him from his proud estate,
Elect him as your candidate,
But do not ask a soldier's hand
To stump him with the foul Whig brand.
Against his fame I strike no blow—
I tought with him in Mexico.
Give me the man who trace and hot.

I fought with him in Mexico.

Give me the men who true and bold Their country and their flag uphold, Whatever force our shores usuall, Whatever war-cry fill the gale, Stoop not to wrong from high or low, An insult answer with a blow, Who make our flag on shores and seas The proudest flag that floats the breeze; Give me the Democratic creed, Bold mea in word, and brave in deed, No traitors, sycophants and knaves, None who dishonor soldier's graves, None who, when evil days betide, Are ever on the foeman's side, None who, when evil days betide,
Are ever on the foeman's side,
Who gallant hearts heap i sults on,
But cheer them when the victory's won.
Nay, shrink not, friend—I mean no harm—
In Mexico I left an arm—
Peace has been ratified, you know,
And Mexicans are all safe now,
Seek some deserter, would you win
A vote to he'p your party in;
Or better still, for voters go
'To Riley's men in Mexico.
